Government Accountability Office, 2006 OCLC Number: (OCoLC)70211295 Subject: Computer security -- Government policy -- United States. Excerpt: . . . SEC did not adequately audit and monitor security events. For example, SEC has not enabled audit trails for two of its financial applications; it has not deployed an effective intrusion detection system; and it does not have a process to analyze security incidents. In addition, at least two of the servers under our review lacked virus protection software. As a result, if a system were modified or disrupted, the commissions capability to trace or recreate events would be diminished. In addition to electronic access controls, other important controls should Other Information System be in place to ensure the security and reliability of an organizations data. Controls Were Not Always These controls include policies, procedures, and control techniques to Effective physically secure computer resources, prevent exploitation of vulnerabilities, appropriately segregate incompatible duties, and prevent unauthorized changes to application software. Weaknesses in these areas increase the risk of unauthorized use, disclosure, modification, or loss of SECs financial systems and sensitive...
